

Hi there,

I am very please that we have the FCC to help regulate communications for the public benefit. I am very glad that some form of regulation has allowed such a fine ISP as Soni.Net to offer DSL service. A small independant company like Sonic.net provides such great personal service to it's cunstomers it would be a shame to negatively impact their ability to compete with the much larger compamies like SBC and Verizon.

We are becoming very dependant on broadband and the choice of providers for it should be broad as well for the general public good.

Please listen to the voice of the smaller ISPs like Sonic.net.

Thank you,
